ABOUT MOWW

The Military Order of the World Wars (MOWW) is a patriotic, nonpartisan, nonsectarian association.

MOWW is composed of commissioned and warrant officers of the seven branches of the United States Uniformed Services.

Today the Companions in the 90+ Chapters throughout the nation are offered the opportunity to continue to serve their country in a non-self-serving posture and to apply their efforts towards the fulfillment of the MOWW CREDO that "IT IS NOBLER TO SERVE THAN TO BE SERVED".

Companions unselfishly donate their time and resources in the conduct and support of, local patriotic programs and activities such as the AZYLC.

Today the twenty-one MOWW Youth Leadership Conferences are conducted in locations around the country including AZYLC 2019 at ASU West in Glendale, Arizona.

OBJECTIVES OF THE AZYLC

- Identify the basic elements of leadership needed in the maintenance of a free society.
- Identify the basic concepts of the free enterprise system and the foundation upon which this great nation was built.
- Develop an appreciation for the Constitution as the significant foundation of our country.
- Develop an awareness of the responsibilities of every citizen toward the perpetuation of our rights and freedoms.
- Develop leadership skills to enable students to become better citizens and the future leaders of our country.

CURRICULUM

The AZYLC curriculum includes the study of the U.S. Constitution, free enterprise, leadership theory and application, and many other interesting topics. Students are given the opportunity to interact with instructors and peers. All social activities are planned and chaperoned. Students eat in the College dining room and live in the student dorms. Small group discussions, debates, skits, etc., are the means for student interactions. Teachers/ facilitators don't lecture; they present interesting discussion topics about relevant Constitutional issues for small group activities. Everyone participates and has fun learning with their peers. We encourage all AZYLC graduates to include this leadership conference in their resumes to higher education programs.
